Football Arguments

(Q.)—Not long ago in a game a referee exercised the power to change his mind in an unusual manner. He sent the player off the field, and later, after consulting with the captain of the "winning" side, he sent for the player and allowed him to return to the field. Is this permissible?

(A.)—The referee, once he has sent a player off the field, has no authority to permit him to return.

In the event of the referee finding that he had erred in sending off the player, the correct procedure would be to report the matter to the County Association and to deal with and await their decision.

* * *

(Q.)—If a defender falls on the ball and remains there to prevent the opposing team from gaining possession, and the referee happens in the penalty area, what would be the referee's decision?

(A.)—It often happens that a goalkeeper is afraid to get on the ball because he may lose the possession of the ball. He takes the ball, fully expecting to be sent off by the referee applying the rule in Rule 13, which says—"The referee shall award a free kick in any case in which he thinks the conduct of a player dangerous or likely to prove dangerous."

If a player, in trying to get the ball from under the goalkeeper's body with his foot, is sent off to kick the goalkeeper, and the ball, the referee would be justified in awarding a free kick.

On the other hand, if the tacking players stood by, waiting for the keeper to move, and failed to do so within reasonable time, the referee would be justified in stopping the play and sending the game by dropping the ball at the spot where the play took place.

"Judy" Masters.

That "Judy" Masters has been a power in the game, both from an administrative and playing point of view, few will deny. That he has been unable to play regularly this season is regretted by

Do You Know—

(A Canterbury Contribution.)

That 'Bury's are a fine lot of sports?

* * *

That Horrie McLeod is a good stand-off outside-right?

* * *

That Ralph Midgely is a keen Soccer man, and an acquisition to his club?

* * *

That Angus Forbes goes nap on the Newcastle trips? Too (Wright) he does.

* * *

That Jim Monks and Billy Felkin are great supporters of Canterbury?

They Say That—

Canterbury was defeated "in a sea of water" at Holmesville last Saturday.

* * *

The present division in the game is welcomed by officials of other codes.

* * *

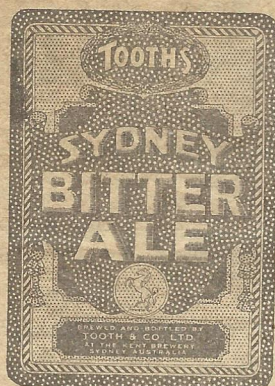

The "gates" at Redfern Oval are improving, and Pyrmont has proved a good draw.

* * *

The new teams, Auburn, North Sydney, and South Sydney, are doing well, and their organisations are improving.

* * *

Finance is playing a big part in the present split, and, providing the clubs find their share of the money, the Association will come out with flying colours.
